

25 AI Prompts for Total Beginners

Copy, paste, and adapt. Works with ChatGPT, Gemini, or any chat AI.

Everyday writing

- 01 Rewrite this email so it sounds friendly but professional. Keep it under 120 words: [paste your email].
- 02 Help me reply to this message. I want to say no politely without burning the bridge: [paste message].
- 03 Turn these rough notes into a clear, well-structured message: [paste notes].
- 04 Proofread this for spelling, grammar, and clarity. Show me the corrected version, then list what you changed: [paste text].
- 05 Give me three subject lines for an email about [topic]. Make one plain, one curious, and one direct.

Planning your day and week

- 06 I have these tasks today: [list]. Help me order them from most to least important and suggest a realistic schedule.
- 07 Break this big goal into small, doable steps I can start this week: [goal].
- 08 Act as a planning partner. Ask me 3 questions to understand my week, then build me a simple plan.
- 09 Help me write a short weekly review: what went well, what didn't, and one thing to try next week. Here are my notes: [notes].
- 10 I keep procrastinating on [task]. Suggest 3 small first steps that take under 10 minutes each.

Learning faster

- 11 Explain [topic] to me like I'm a complete beginner. Use a simple everyday example.
- 12 I read this and didn't fully get it. Explain it more simply and tell me the one key idea: [paste text].
- 13 Quiz me with 5 easy questions on [topic], one at a time, and tell me if I'm right after each answer.
- 14 Give me a 5-day plan to learn the basics of [topic], with one small task per day.
- 15 What are the 3 most common beginner mistakes with [topic], and how do I avoid them?

Getting real answers, not vague ones

- 16 Before you answer, ask me any questions you need to give a genuinely useful response. My question is: [question].
- 17 Give me the short answer first in one sentence, then a longer explanation underneath.
- 18 Compare [option A] and [option B] for someone who cares most about [what matters to you]. Use a simple table.
- 19 You gave a general answer. Make it specific to my situation: [describe your situation].
- 20 List the pros and cons of [decision], then tell me which you'd lean toward and why.

Getting things done

- 21 Help me draft a simple checklist for [task or event] so I don't forget anything.
- 22 Summarize this long text into 5 bullet points a busy person could read in 30 seconds: [paste text].
- 23 I need to make a decision about [topic]. Walk me through it by asking one question at a time.
- 24 Turn this idea into a short, clear plan I could hand to someone else: [describe idea].
- 25 Act as a friendly coach. I want to build the habit of [habit]. Give me a simple starting plan and one way to stay on track.

A note on using AI well: treat these as starting points, not magic. Always read what the AI gives you, check anything important, and make it your own. — Let Me Teach You AI